Health and emergencies

These answers help staff in an emergency and help the barn match each rider with a suitable horse. They aren't medical advice; ask your doctor if you're unsure whether riding is right for you.

Do you have a health condition staff should know about in an emergency, such as seizures, diabetes, asthma, a heart condition or a past head injury?

☐ Yes ☐ No

What is it, and what should staff do?

Have you had a concussion, a broken bone or surgery in the last 12 months?

☐ Yes ☐ No

Tell us what happened and when.

Are you allergic to anything, such as bee stings, horses, hay, dust or a medicine?

☐ Yes ☐ No

What are you allergic to, and do you carry medicine for it?

Doctor's name and phone (optional)

Health insurance company (optional)

What you agree to

Horses can be unpredictable

I understand horses are large, strong animals with minds of their own. Even a calm, well-trained horse can kick, bite, buck, rear, spook, stumble or bolt without warning, and a rider can fall or be thrown, stepped on or crushed.

Initials

At a clinic or show

I understand clinics and shows bring unfamiliar horses, crowds, trailers, loudspeakers and warm-up rings with many riders, which can upset even a steady horse.

Initials

Event rules

I'll follow the organizer's rules, the ring steward's and the clinician's directions, and the warm-up ring's passing and lane rules.

Initials

The horse I bring

The horse I'm entering is mine, or its owner has given me permission to bring, ride and enter it. Its health paperwork is real and current.

Initials

Helmet and boots

I'll wear a properly fitted, fastened riding helmet that meets ASTM F1163 and carries SEI certification whenever I'm on a horse, and boots or shoes with a heel. The barn may refuse a ride without them.

Initials

Emergency care

If I'm hurt and can't decide for myself, staff may call emergency services and arrange for medical care. I'm responsible for the cost of that care.

Initials

I choose to ride

I take part by choice and accept these risks. To the extent the law allows, I release the host barn, the organizer, the clinician, officials, staff and volunteers from claims for injury that results from the inherent risks of riding and being around horses.

Initials _____

My answers

My answers are true and complete, and I'll tell the barn if my health changes before a ride.

Entry policy

Entries are confirmed once the entry fee is paid. The organizer's prize list sets the closing date and the rules for scratches. Classes may combine, split or move for weather or safety.
